Donna Wilk Cardillo, R.N., whose nursing career covers more than 20 years, is president of Cardillo & Associates. One of the country's leading experts on nursing career management, she lives in Wall, New Jersey.

I am very pleased with this. I recently graduated with my BSN and accepted a job in a PICU. I am so excited/ nervous about starting my new career! I am currently in limbo because I had a while off in between graduating and starting my position as an RN. This is a great read for all nursing new grads! It gives helpful hints about career advancement, setting goals, and finding your place in nursing! Some of the information was a little silly for example telling you to be on time to work and not gossip (things that I would think everyone who survived nursing school would know by now) but reminders of how to be a good employee never hurt I suppose.

Even though I have had many jobs before, my first few months taking care of pts on my own were a bit rough - this book helped me realize I wasn't the only one feeling terrified & that I should not be too hard on myself. Author is very knowledgable, I recommend for anyone just starting out as an RN :)

a great gift for a nephew who just became an RN

I read the first edition of this book when I graduate over 10 years ago and bought this one for someone I am mentoring. The advice is practical, but many people don't have very good work ethic so not only does it talk about how to be a good nurse, but a good employee and coworker which is essential starting out.

So happy I found this book.Great! Great!

This book offered a great look into the challenges if the current healthcare environment.

Bought as a gift for my teenage grand-daughter who indicated a real interest in the field.She was pleased and started on it immediately. Processing and delivery were as advertised.

Pretty detailed and interesting!
