The Valedictorian That Lives At Home With Mommy And Daddy: How To Bridge The Gap Between Academic Achievement And Real World Success.

Synopsis

This book outlines the disconnect between academic achievement and real world success. According to the Pew Research Center, 45% of recent college graduates were living with family in 2011, and the numbers are rising every year. Approximately 65% of parents expect to support their kids for up to 5 years after they graduate from college. The numbers tell us the whole story: school is not preparing the majority of college students to thrive in the real world. My book provides solutions.

Customer Reviews

This is a book full of gems that will sky rocket your life to the next level! Whether it be your social, financial, or work life this book addresses all those areas and more. Uzziah Israel gives us the wisdom to overcome student loan debt as well as take our careers to the next level leveraging mentors. Your social life will also shift once you realize what type of people you have in your inner-circle.

What a fantastic book that talks about what happens after college. Most students finish college with huge amount of student loans that need to be paid back but still can't find a job. I wish I had this book when I graduated from college. I will definitely share these insights with my friends' children who are currently in college.

This book is very inspiring! The author has given me tools to succeed in my career path! It was very easy to read and now I'm ready to apply these tools I learned from the book. Great work!

This book is a must read for the young and old alike. I learned so much from reading this book, that I even implemented the information when registering my daughter for college. Now she will be that much more financially prepared than anyone else in the family was upon graduation! Very edifying!!!

Excellent book!! Very pleased.

New learning with new understanding with life.

very informative.

This Book is what EVERYONE---NEEDS.
