Internationally known Christian radio icon June Hunt has carefully laid out feelings associated with rejection along with statements and questions by which one can use to evaluate if they are living for the approval of others. The clear signs and symptoms presented will help the reader grasp a better understanding of themselves leading to strategies that will replace wrong beliefs and self talk with positive affirmations. Hunt's years as a Biblical counselor reflects the realities of rejection with the following statement: "One obvious assault that rejection makes on your soul is an altering of your self-perception and the inevitable insecurities that seem to arise out of nowhere when someone painfully turns away from you." These very applicable strategies will include Scriptures to meditate on and ways to combat the negative self talk. As she leads one to reach out toward others with conversation starters, the aim is to experience the positive effects of mutual validation. This excellent booklet will serve well in anyone's library collection as it is a resource that can be referred to over and over and passed on to others. June Hunt has a multitude of Biblically based booklets aiding you in your Christian walk toward restoration, emotional health and spiritual freedom.

Review of Friendship: Iron Sharpening Iron by June Hunt There are many books on the topic of friendship, however this is one of the best I have read. It is concise, easy to read, and Biblically sound. I love that the author uses the story of David and Jonathan as an example of "Iron Sharpening Iron" to show what a healthy, loving and sacrificial relationship looks like. As a pastor and counselor, I have seen my share of people who have codependent friendships and the fact that the author covers this topic is a plus. Not only does the author define what a healthy and unhealthy relationship looks like, she also defines the various types of friendships. This is a book that I would highly recommend to those I counsel (for individuals study) as well as those in a small group setting. I love the fact that the author includes a section that gives solutions on "how to do relationship. This book is loaded with plenty of scripture references, memory verses, and prayers to help the reader understand how to have meaningful and God honoring friendships. An excellent read for anyone whether you have healthy relationships or not. An excellent resource for everyone. I have received a free copy of this book in exchange for an honest review.

This is a must read for anyone who still holds onto things of their past from dysfunctional family life. Insightful, opens doors otherwise shut for different reasons and personal choices. Insightful and thought provoking to say the least.

This "Rejection" June Hope for the Heart Series" will give me more helpful insight on dealing with very sensitive topic on being feeling rejected by someone or a group.

Very helpful. Could have been a bit deeper. But it makes a good place to start.

I should have bought the entire series!! I appreciate the short format, definitions, and straight forward approach of June Hunt's writing. I also appreciate portions in the book to apply what we have read into our lives.

This little book gives powerful Scriptures to combat the war on the soul for those of us who have been rejected, constantly battle the scars of rejection, or to pray for those who are or have been rejected. Simple and yet powerful.

I cannot say enough good about this author's books. Where the psychologist leaves off, God begins. This author combines counseling and Jesus Christ. Could there be a better combination? Nope
