Sandra N. Elbaum was an ESL Instructor at Truman College, one of the City Colleges of Chicago, for thirty-six years. She has also taught in elementary and high schools, and in Mexico, Puerto Rico, the former Soviet Union, and Slovakia. Sandy is the author of the popular series Grammar in Context, now in its Fifth Edition. Sandy received her B.A. in Spanish and M.A. in Teaching English as a Second Language from the University of Illinois.

This is the long-standing standby series for grammar courses in our community college ESL program. I have experimented with other texts over the years, but I keep coming back to Elbaum because: a) Most of the reading and writing contexts are relevant and engaging for my students. b) Since the series is so widely used, they have many options for obtaining it inexpensively--online second-hand sales, rentals, or hand-me-down from friends and relatives. Since a majority of my students are low-income and textbook costs are an obstacle for them, this is an important consideration. The weak point of the book, from my perspective, is that some of the grammar points seem to be explained in convoluted and confusing ways when much simpler explanations exist. These include our residual uses of the subjunctive in English, the problem of -ing/-ed participle adjectives, and tricky things about adjective clauses that are governed by features of the embedded sentence. There are several places where I just have to tell the class, "Don't pay attention to that page in the book, I can explain it better."

excellent.

It's a nice book , very helpful .I need the CD for many exercises . How I can get the CD , without the CD I couldn't do many exercises.

I bought this book because I needed it for school. I was a bit skeptical at first because it was so cheap, but after it came I was impressed because it was in such great condition and the shipping was fast. One of the few things I've bought on that I was impressed with. Would buy from this seller again.

I am really happy with my purchase
