The No-Cry Sleep Solution: Gentle Ways To Help Your Baby Sleep Through The Night

Synopsis

There are two schools of thought for encouraging babies to sleep through the night: the hotly debated Ferber technique of letting the baby "cry it out," or the grin-and-bear-it solution of getting up from dusk to dawn as often as necessary. If you don't believe in letting your baby cry it out, but desperately want to sleep, there is now a third option, presented in Elizabeth Pantley's sanity-saving book The No-Cry Sleep Solution. Pantley's successful solution has been tested and proven effective by scores of mothers and their babies from across the United States, Canada, and Europe. Based on her research, Pantley's guide provides you with effective strategies to overcoming naptime and nighttime problems. The No-Cry Sleep Solution offers clearly explained, step-by-step ideas that steer your little ones toward a good night's sleep--all with no crying. Tips from The No-Cry Sleep Solution:
Uncover the stumbling blocks that prevent baby from sleeping through the night
Determine--and work with--baby's biological sleep rhythms
Create a customized, step-by-step plan to get baby to sleep through the night
Use the Persistent Gentle Removal System to teach baby to fall asleep without breast-feeding, bottlefeeding, or using a pacifier

Through months of research, personal experience, and working with 60 test case families, I have assembled and organized a wide variety of gentle ways to help your baby sleep through the night. The ideas do not involve letting your baby cry -- not even for a minute. You will create a customized plan for your own family based on the ideas, all within a simple and easy-to-follow framework. It's a method that is as gentle and loving as it is effective. I don't believe babies should be left alone to cry themselves to sleep. Or even left to cry as you pop in every 10 minutes to murmur comforting words without reaching out to touch them. But I also know that you can -- gently and lovingly -- help your baby to sleep peacefully all night long. So give The No-Cry Sleep Solution a try, and plan on seeing some wonderful sleep results.

Husband and I had been struggling with sleep since our baby was 4 months old. We started to sleep train and it was a disaster. Prior to that baby had always bed shared with us (after spending 3-4 months in a co-sleeper) so it was extremely hard trying to put him in a dark room all by himself. It just did not work. Our son cried for days on end and I really regret doing that. My husband found this book and bought it. I'd also seen it but wasn't impressed with reviews. Anyway, I started reading through it and became greatly encouraged by the authors' assessments and advice regarding sleep around my baby's age (10 months at the time). I felt validated in my bed sharing philosophy and also felt like it helped to normalize what we were going through. A lot of websites that want you to buy (literally) into sleep training will pathologize your child's sleep when it isn't pathological! Sure enough, after employing some gentle sleep recommendations from this book, and trusting our mama/papa instincts, we saw results. For us, it was key to cut the night nursing as it was getting out of hand (3-4 times a night at 10 months!). I mean, I wanted to be one of these breastfeeding all night and day mamas but I couldn't function at my new job on the sleep I was getting. Anyway if you need some encouragement and some gentle suggestions then this book is for you. After reading I felt like I knew what to do the whole time and I was now able to listen to those instincts more effectively.

First I want to say that I LOVE all of Pantley's "No-Cry" sleep/nap solution books! My son was born with severe hip dysplasia and GERD, and as such was not very comfortable the first year of his life. He spent that first year in a variety of orthotic devices including body casts (which are soo much fun in diapers let me tel you), had major surgery when he was only 12 weeks old, and the acid reflux made him choke and stop breathing, and of course made him very uncomfortable all of the time. For us, the hip dysplasia required his legs to be put into a frog-legged position that exacerbated the acid reflux. We couldn't use bouncy seats, swings, leave him in his carseat, use a highchair - even clothing didn't fit properly. What was good for the hips was contraindicated/bad for the acid reflux/GERD, and vice-versa!! It was such a frustrating time. While sleeping has been a particular challenge for us, I am firmly not a CIO-type of mom and have always wanted our son to know we were there for him regardless of whether it was day or night. We have used many of her techniques and "stage-setting" ideas for both nighttime and naptime. Her books - the No Cry Sleep Solution, the No Cry Sleep Solution for Toddlers and Preschoolers, and the No Cry Nap Solution - have been a lifesaver for me. I believe that different things work for different families and different children within families, and one of the things I liked best about her books is that you acknowledge that and provide suggestions and actual real data! A few weeks after my son's surgery, when he was about 4 months old, we used the techniques in The No-Cry Sleep Solution, and within 10 days our son - who was still recovering from the surgery and was in a body cast and sleeping on an acid reflux pillow system (from arpillow.com), was sleeping through the night. He never felt alone, was always attended to, and always gently fell back asleep. Unfortunately for us, after he needed a cast change - and we had to wake him up to get him to the hospital and feed him at a particular time (he had to go back under general anesthesia) - he did not go back to sleeping through the night for us at that time. However, we continued to attend to his needs throughout the night as well as during the day, and today, at three years of age, he sleeps 10-11 hours a night, alone in his big boy bed!! This is after being with us, in our room (and often sleeping in our bed) for the first 2 3/4 years of his life! Our transition to the big boy bed/big boy room was sooo easy and I firmly believe that what I learned from Elizabeth

Pantley - which strongly reinforced my own thoughts and opinions - is a major reason why that is so. Our son knows he is safe and his needs will be met, so he doesn't get out of the bed "just because he can", he doesn't pine or whine for us unless he truly needs us. What a wonderful feeling of accomplishment - and satisfaction - for me as a mother, that my son has good nights' sleep! He is very verbal now, and I often ask him "how did you sleep honey?" and he replies - and this is thoughtfully, not just a knee-jerk reaction "I slept good Mama." Sometimes he even asks "How YOU sleep Mama?" (so sweet!) If I follow-up by asking him "Do you feel tired this morning?" he almost looks at me in shock and says "No!". (Of course some days he is tired and on those days I don't ask because I can tell and then I respond to him differently), but I love this. I have spent so much time and effort and worry and concern about my son's sleeping over the past three years and it is so wonderful to now see how he has grown into a child who can - and will - sleep comfortably, confidently - on his own! Of course he knows that the "big bed" (Mama and Daddy's bed) is always there for him if he really needs it, but he doesn't take advantage of that at all. Elizabeth Pantley was the first person to explain to me about sleep cycles and how we sleep. I'm an educated person and even I didn't know this! By using suggestions from her books, we were able to - within a week - get our 12 month old son to take regular naps, which he has only given up recently (he just turned three). Literally, we took a week off work, employed your methods, and within 2-3 days our son was taking regular naps - even though he'd NEVER taken them before (not regularly). I have continued to use her techniques and advice and they have never failed us - we have had more sleep issues than some, and just because our son did have more trouble, I do not believe at all that to be a reflection on Pantley's books. Quite the opposite in fact - I believe her methods, suggestions, and her overall perspective - set the groundwork for what we now have - a very successful sleeper who sometimes still needs Mommy or Daddy at night! Now, our three year old son is starting to give up naps, but he consolidated his sleep in the process. As her books state, citing research, that children need various amounts of sleep depending on their ages, but that there is a range of that. With her help I started paying attention to this, and realized that my son needs a bit less sleep than the average child his age - but she also accounts for that in her books too. He needed about 11 hours. He used to get those with 8 hours at night and a 3 hour nap. At about the age of 2 1/2 he started having more difficulty napping, but began sleeping longer than 8 hours at night. Now a new three year old, he mostly doesn't nap, but sleeps 10-11 hours SOLID a night. At night, we have even seen him (on the monitor) wake up a bit, sit up in bed, and lay himself down and go right back to sleep (sometimes he sings a verse or two of his favorite song, which is adorable). On the occasions where he cannot get back to sleep right away, he might take as much as an hour to call for me. I call this a HUGE success! Our son over 95% of the time, who used to have sooo much trouble sleeping - now sleeps 10-11 hours a night, and does not immediately call for us if he wakes up. This means he has learned how to get himself back to sleep, and that we have helped him learn this gently. It also means that we have learned how to create a sleep-conducive environment for him that feels cozy and safe!! Elizabeth Pantley's books have equipped me with tools I didn't have, information of which I was unaware - and perhaps as important as anything else - a feeling that I am not alone in my opinions and beliefs regarding my child's sleeping. Can you imagine being exhausted and feeling like everyone is telling you to ignore your "mommy instincts" and let your child CIO? Oh my goodness, Pantley's book was a much-needed breath of fresh air!!! give this book - and all three of her No-Cry sleep/nap books an enthusiastic 5 stars! I would give these 10 stars if I could!! Thank you SO much to Elizabeth Pantley for writing these books. I just purchased her No-Cry Potty Training Solution book and am looking forward to what help you can provide me in helping my reluctant three year old little boy (when he is ready of course!)

I've had fantastic results from this book just within the first week. I've been nursing my 8 month old son to sleep since he was born. He would wake sometimes once an hour at night, and the only way to get him back to sleep was to nurse. He is learning so quickly how to fall asleep on his own, but it has definitely been a lot of (challenging) work. However, we didn't feel that Cry-It-Out was the best choice for our family, so I am beyond thrilled to have found this book.

Before this book we had tried unsuccessfully for 9 months to get my baby to sleep. I couldn't bear to leave him alone crying in his room, but I was at my wits end. After 20 days on this approach, my little guy is going to sleep easier, I've reclaimed my evenings with my husband, and I don't wake up every morning like a zombie. I've actually gotten sleep and so has he! I can't say enough good things about this approach.

This book made me, my husband and our baby happy. No more stressful going to bed times for our 10 month old son. Just read it. I love all the tips, gentle and understanding tone of the author. She is a Mom and she is not talking like other people who do not know but suggest as if they know, her advices are based on science, experience and love. It changed so much! Thank you, Elizabeth! I can cook a dinner while my baby is sound asleep at 7:30 with a gentle method: dinner at 6, bath and 6:30, 7-reading in a quiet dimmed room and voila-he fell asleep within 15 minutes. No more crying, baby swings, sleep remedies, screaming in the crib. Just pure comforting bed time routine at right time. We did not know about it and took our baby to bed at 8 when he was overtired so he passed the gate of sleepiness. No more...7 pm-magic time!
