On Suicide (Penguin Classics)

Synopsis

The landmark investigation into suicide and society?now in a new translation Àfâ mile Durkheim, one of the fathers of modern sociology, was the first to suggest that suicide might be as much a response to society as an act of individual despair. When he looked at social, religious, or racial groups that had high incidences of suicide, he discovered that abnormally high or low levels of social integration increase the likelihood of suicide. More than a century after its initial publication, Durkheim?s groundbreaking work continues to fascinate and challenge those seeking to understand one of the least understandable of human acts.

Robin Buss is a writer and translator who works for theIndependent on Sunday and as television critic for The Times Educational Supplement. He studied at the University of Paris, where he took a degree and a doctorate in French literature. He is part-author of the article 'French Literature' in Encyclopaedia Britannica and has published critical studies of works by Vigny and Cocteau, and three books on European cinema, The French Through Their Films (1988), Italian Films (1989) and French Film Noir (1994). He has also translated a number of volumes for Penguin Classics.

I think this is a very good book for ppl who need some kind of explanation for someone in their family who hasattempted or committed suicide. I know that it helped me in so many ways.

Great book , haven't gotten through all of it , it's a hard read..

If you're a sociology student or just interested in the subject, it is a GREAT BOOK! Don't pay attention to the bible thumper who gave it 1 star.

Good quality!! it was as explained!!

It was not the book I was hoping to get, there is a copy on archive.com that is free and is more convenient for students.

At my Bible study, someone mentioned this book and we started talking about. I ended up purchasing it because I wanted to see what it was about. My conclusion is that any book that tries to explain away or justify suicide is committing a sin. Life is a gift from God. Suicide is wrong. Abortion is wrong. End of story.
