Pre-Christian Ireland: From The First Settlers To The Early Celts (Ancient Peoples And Places)

Synopsis

Tells the story of human settlement in Ireland from its beginnings 10,000 years ago to St Patrick's Christianizing mission in the 5th century AD. This is interwoven with accounts of major excavations at sites such as Carrowmore, Rathgall and Navan Fort. --This text refers to an out of print or unavailable edition of this title.

Customer Reviews

The seller described the book well. I don't like to buy books others have written in or highlighted and this did have highlighting--but I really wanted it and the seller had indicated it was only lightly highlighted on a few pages and that turned out to be true. Otherwise it was in prime condition--better in my opinion than it sounded. I greatly appreciate a seller like this one who had an exceptionally good description of a book and made me happy by offering it through . THANK YOU!

This book is written by an expert in the field in Irish archeology and it should be read by anyone who wants to know the truth of pre-Christian Ireland. Harbison's descriptions of the ancient artifacts, the tombs, the gold, the jewelry, are excellent for the information he gives on early Irish life. The Irish Bronze Age is particularly interesting. Although maybe not written for a general reader it is a great book to have for accurate and informed reference. I highly recommend it.
