Donald Griggs is a leading Christian education specialist who has trained church educators, pastors, and teachers throughout the U.S. for 40 years. (2000)

Donald Griggs, a highly-respected and well-known Christian educator has written this edition to meet the needs of today's new generation of Christian educators. This resource can be used by church Christian education leaders and pastors who have leadership responsibility for teaching and learning in the church. Some of the book's strengths are the reproducible hand-outs for teachers and education committees; the discussion about the ways that teaching needs have changed; and the recommendation of new teaching strategies. This no nonsense book equips both teachers and students who plan to become teachers how to do their work more effectively in today's churches.

excellent source of information for teachers and anyone one desires to become a teacher. I would recommend this book to those who in the church structure are Christian educators of their particular denominations.

Great book with great ideas. Now if only teachers would read and adopt it.

I use this book each time I teach the class of the same name. A timeless teaching tool for teacher.

Great book. Got it in good timing.

Great Book for Training Sunday School Teachers.

This one came fast and looked new

This is a comprehensive guidebook of practical ideas, advice, and wisdom on the art and practice of teaching. The author, a leading authority in the field of Christian Education and a veteran trainer of teachers, offers here a realistic view of congregational teaching and learning., while also providing an essential resource for those who have accepted the exhilarating, yet unsettling, challenge of the church's first ministry--teaching. An array of training tools and techniques are featured in this book, including reproducible charts and pages, as well as specific assignments that help teachers integrate and further study each chapter lesson. In addition, provided are easy-to-implement suggestions and activities that help teachers work with multiple intelligences and new teaching models, use media (i.e., video, computers, and son on), identify their unique teaching and leading gifts, design lesson plans, and encourage creativity.
