Dating Violence (Confronting Violence Against Women)

Synopsis

Women between the ages of sixteen and twenty-four experience the highest rate of dating violence—almost triple the national average. Understanding what dating violence is can help would-be victims—whether male or female—avoid getting involved with someone who could become violent, or provide readers much-needed guidance if they are already in a potentially violent relationship. Resources are provided to help victims end an unhealthy relationship and recover both emotionally and physically. Warning signs, causes, statistics, and options for legal recourse are also included.

Customer Reviews

Gr 10 Up—Many teens today, particularly young women, face myriad issues related to violence in different contexts. This series takes an in-depth look at topics that readers (or someone they know) might be experiencing. The information is well researched and very detailed, and the authors cite studies and provide examples of real-life scenarios. The books are text-heavy, but the content is broken down in an easily readable way, with color photos and supplemental pages of text. "Myth and Facts" helps teens wade through misconceptions about these complicated and often dire situations and may also prompt them to seek help if they are struggling. The goal of the series is to educate but also to reassure readers that they are not alone, and the titles emphasize legal rights, self-protection, and the importance of not blaming the victim. VERDICT A significant and unique discussion of potentially life-or-death situations. (c) Copyright 2011. Library Journals LLC, a wholly owned subsidiary of Media Source, Inc.
