Synopsis

My story will keep you entertained throughout the book. Imagine sitting with a killer, trained by killers in the California State prison system in the 1960's and the U.S. Government during the Vietnam War, tucked away in a Veteran's Hospital in the State of California completely isolated from today's society. I am a gangster, a father, a Vietnam Veteran, a proven killer, and now a Dying man. Yes, I fought for the Nuestra Familia as one of the original members during the formation of our gang ( still in good standing) and the United States Recon Marines. Thinking about an effective way to present the sequential facts of my story I am about to narrate, without bias, I am merely reporting the facts as a tired old man - a man who people say looks like he has been through hell and back - a man who now struggles to walk - a man some say appears lonely - and a man who makes every effort to live as best as possible every day in his esoteric situation. This is a difficult sight for my family to see given they remember me a vibrant man, a strong and a prideful man, whom individuals knew, by my menacing stare, that I was the wrong man to have road rage with, or to take out their bad day on. I was trained by the U.S. Government in Camp Pendleton to fight the enemy as a Recon Marine (7th Marines) in Vietnam - a war I didn't even know existed until the Government recognized my value and worth as a killer who asked no questions. I am a Native American. I am a gangster - I was an experienced killer - I had inept social skills - I was filled with anger and rage - I had a hardened heart - and I was easily brain washed with causes. I was the perfect soldier to help fight the enemy in Vietnam! This story reveals how I was hand-picked by the U.S. Government to become an assassin, a man who was not selected by a random act of recruiting American citizens to become soldiers for the Vietnam War - soldiers to fight a war in a place many did not even know existed; soldiers as young as sixteen years of age. The story tells how and why my journey began at a very young age. Upon reflection, it started out with this poor young kid serving time in the San Joaquin Juvenile Hall in Middle School for his first grand theft auto. After getting a taste for Juvenile Hall, this poor young kid quickly learned it was a place where he was treated with respect by staff, a place where a poor young kid received three healthy meals a day, and most important, a place where a poor young kid did not receive impulsive beatings and abuse - it was a place of escape protecting a poor young kid from a mother - a mother who gained pleasure inflicting pain and abuse on her children due to mental health issues. Soon after learning and experiencing that Juvenile Hall was a safe place, this poor young kid's recidivism rate skyrocketed. He got a taste of what it was like to be imprisoned within cement walls, living behind barb-wired fences, and other confined measures; however, he viewed this domicile as a place of escape safeguarding him from the vicious, antagonist abuse inflicted by his mother. His crimes of armed robbery, burglary, and assault with a deadly weapon provided the means to ensure his tenure in Juvenile Hall. This was how this poor young kid spent his Middle School Years - a time when he also joined a gang, called Dog Patch, on Stockton's south side. Often, property crimes, such as burglary, robbery and theft, are the work of drug addicts, but this story tells how I served as a prostitute of crime driven by rage, anger and my strong belief in causes. This story presents the path I took to the Vietnam War. Each chapter tells who I was, who I became throughout my life-long journey, reveals my path to the Vietnam War, and conveys who I am today. So, sit back, get your popcorn and soda, and get ready to be entertained because there is no doubt in my mind this will be a story like no other - a story like you have never heard about before!
