About the Authors: Bernard Ireland spent his working life with the Royal Naval Scientific Service, and has written over 30 books on maritime technological and historical subjects. Francis Crosby led the marketing department at the Imperial War Museum's branch at Duxford, England, and has written extensively on the subject of historic aviation.

Nice book, wish it was standard size binding,

My son has several books in this series and seems unable to pull himself away from them. He seems to really enjoy the great detail provided. It gives concise details about all that one can ever begin to imagine..... dates, specifications for service periods, construction specs, weapon specs, staffing specs, and plenty more. WONDERFUL SERIES!!!!!!!!!!!!

I got this for a father's day gif . My father loves it. He texts me random info he learns from it.

A lot of information. Very good pictures

Excellent. Nuff said!

Excellent coverage of both subjects but size of print and page makes for difficult reading at times. Photos are rather small.

The Aircraft carrier portion is a total reprint of The Illustrated guide to Aircraft carriers printed in 2005. Exact copy. Same pictures. I expected some new information in a book that is published in 2011! Do not spend the money. Also the type is so small as to make the book useless. RETURNED for refund!

Publishers sometimes combine previously-published titles to get more bucks out of their books. Unfortunately, they normally don't warn readers that what they're offering is warmed-over material slapped together and published under a new title. Case in point: THE WORLD ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND NAVAL AIRCRAFT, a 2011 release from Lorenz Books/Anness Publishing. This hefty, 510-page book is crammed with over a thousand color and b&w photographs, profiles and artwork sure to delight the heart of a naval enthusiast. Important carriers and aircraft get comprehensive, two-page write-ups. Less important ships/planes get a half-page or full-page. Emphasis is on development and general usage; combat accounts are lacking. The font is pretty small and some of the pix are equally as challenging to 60-year old eyes. And now the other shoe drops: the book is a note-by-note reprint of Bernard Ireland's AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, published in 2006, and Francis Crosby's 2009 THE WORLD ENCYCLOPEDIA OF NAVAL AIRCRAFT. This two-fer arrangement is acknowledged on the verso of the title page but listings at and other booksellers don't mention that fact. So, buyer beware! Short-and-sweet: If you haven't purchased the Ireland or Crosby books already, THE WORLD ENCYCLOPEDIA OF AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND NAVAL AIRCRAFT is a comprehensive, well-illustrated and reasonably-priced ($35.00) guide to carriers and carrier birds. Recommended.
